The Warranty does not apply to any product imported directly into New Zealand by someone other than us. Therapeutic Goods

Therapeutic Goods that are sold to the general public in New Zealand must be registered, listed or included on the Medsafe Web Assisted Notification of Devices (WAND) Database. This is the case for all medical devices purchased from this website, pharmacies, health stores or supermarkets.

Therapeutic Goods are those products used in humans that can prevent, alleviate, diagnose or cure medical ailments, injuries, defects or diseases. They may also claim to maintain the health of consumers.

It is thus an illegal offence to sell products like blood pressure monitors over the internet if they are not entered into the WAND Database under the Medicines Act 1981.

Entry of Therapeutic Goods in the WAND Database means that they have been through rigorous testing to prove that they meet their clinical efficacy and safety requirements. They are also made under a strenuous quality management system.

If products are purchased that are not entered in the WAND Database, then they may be unsafe, may not work or may be unreliable or even dangerous. If an individual suffers adverse consequences from using such medical devices, information about the goods and redress may be difficult to obtain.

Promotion of the availability of Therapeutic Goods not in the WAND Database is illegal under the Medicines Act 1981.
